5. Lower Hall, Horton-Hardgrave Hall

   Lower Hall is home to the Raymond J. Herbert College of Business, which also includes a Starbucks conveniently located inside the building. Next to Lower Hall is Horton-Hardgrave Hall, which houses the graduate program for students in the College of Business, and includes a rooftop terrace on the top floor.

6. Samuel Ginn College of Engineering Sector

   Beside Lower Hall is the Shooby Center for Engineering Technology, which houses several auditorium and class lecture rooms, study spaces, and administrative offices for the College of Engineering. Directly off Thach Concourse is the Brown-Kopel Engineering Student Achievement Center, which includes laboratories, group study rooms, flexible classrooms, computer labs, project incubators, and a design studio.

7. Foy Hall and Cater Hall

   Foy Hall, named for a beloved former dean of men, James E. Foy, contains several food dining options, including Chicken Salad Chick, Panda Express, Prevail Coffee and its own Foy Commons Dining Hall. In addition, just outside of Foy Hall, students may select to eat from a variety of food trucks. Freeman Year Experience offers Auburn students the opportunity to study abroad. International Education all have their offices in Foy. Opposite Foy Hall is Katherine Cooper Cater Hall. The university’s Honors College is housed here. Hey Day, a favorite Auburn tradition held annually on Cater Lawn, is held by the SGA and is dedicated to promoting the friendly campus atmosphere Auburn is famously known for.

8. Samford Hall

   Samford Hall is the postcard picture of Auburn’s campus. Named after former Alabama Governor William J. Samford, the building is the successor to Old Main, which burned down in 1887. Samford is home to the president’s office. The Samford clock tower chimes every 15 minutes, and at noon, plays the fight song for all to hear. Other historic buildings located near Samford Hall include Langdon Hall and Harpelle Hall. In front of Langdon you will see the University Seal, on which is written: “Research, Instruction, Extension; for the advancement of science and arts.” These are the overarching principles to which Auburn was founded as Alabama’s land-grant institution.

9. Mary Martin Hall

   Mary Martin Hall is Auburn University’s first library. It now houses Student Financial Services, Career Center and University Scholarships. The Career Center helps career and internship fairs yearly and conducts mock interviews and personality tests to help students find their career path. Next to Samford Hall, you will see Terrell Hall, which serves as the home to the Department of Chemical Engineering.

10. Ralph Brown Draughon Library and Mell Classroom

   Ralph Brown Draughon Library is a 200,000-square-foot building and contains resources for students to utilize coursework, including the Media and Digital Resource Lab and Miller Writing Center. Several student support services are located here, including Study Partners – a student tutoring service and Academic Coaching. Located at the front entrance of RBDL is the Mall Classroom Building, which includes interactive study, meeting and classroom spaces. Mell also houses Panera Bread to keep students fueled during late-night study sessions.

11. Science Center Concourse

   The Science Center Concourse is informally known as the science center concourse because of its proximity to the College of Sciences and Mathematics. The large building is the Science Center Laboratories, and the two smaller buildings to the right are the Science Center Auditorium and the Science Center Classroom. The Science Center and also up the hill, you will find Dudley Hall – home to the College of Architecture, Design and Construction. This nationally ranked college includes popular majors such as architecture, building science, graphic design, and landscape architecture.

12. Leach Science Center

   The Leach Science Center addition, located above the Hill of the COSAM buildings, houses classroom and laboratories for science and math students.

13. Comer Hall

   Comer Hall is home to the College of Agriculture, housing the college’s main administrative offices as well as the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. Mary pro-professional students choose the College of Agriculture’s Pre-Vet/Pre-Professional track that allows students to satisfy academic requirements for application to Auburn’s College of Veterinary Medicine. The College of Veterinary Medicine is accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association Council of Education.

14. The Hill

   The Hill houses men and women in 12 residence halls. Hill rooms are suite-style rooms consisting of two double-occupancy rooms connected by a bathroom. Terrell Dining Hall is centrally located on the Hill with four dining facilities. The Hill is the housing area closest to the Medical Clinic, which is a full-service primary-care clinic that serves Auburn students, faculty and staff as well as the community. The clinic includes a full medical staff, including physicians and nurse practitioners. Laboratory and X-ray rooms and other medical services are also provided. The School of Forestry and Wildlife Sciences is located just beyond the Hill. The school manages and maintains a Forest Ecology Preserve and Nature Center. The president’s home is also located near the Hill and was built in 1938.

15. The Village

   The Village housing area consists of eight residence halls. Auburn’s 17 social sororities are housed in three of the buildings and a fourth building houses members of the Alpha Omicron Pi College. The remaining four buildings are coed housing for both freshman and upperclassmen. The Village is located near the Auburn Arena, and has the capacity for 5,600 Auburn basketball fans. The Auburn University Recreation and Wellness Center is located directly across from the arena. It provides more than 242,000 square feet of recreational space for Auburn students, faculty and staff. Amenities include an indoor walking/running track, six regulation-size basketball courts, an outdoor leisure pool, a rock climbing wall, racquetball courts, sand volleyball courts and much more. Located just beyond the recreation center are the Intramural fields where students can play recreational sports.

16. Health Sciences Sector

   The Health Sciences Sector includes the School of Nursing Building which provides hands-on learning space and classrooms for nursing students. Directly behind that building is the Pharmaceutical Research Building which houses pharmacy laboratory space and administrative offices.
