JOB SUMMARY

The Supervisor of Gift Accounting is a key member of the Advancement team whose daily work contributes to a comprehensive dataset of alumni and constituent information. With a focus on accuracy, the Supervisor of Gift Accounting actively records gift, biographical, and other related data to ensure the most comprehensive database of record possible for Auburn University Advancement.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Serves as the lead for gift accounting, maintaining expert knowledge of industry and AU Advancement practices for proper recording of constituent data and crediting of gifts, pledges, and other related financial transactions.
- Supervises staff responsible for timely and accurate processing of all charitable contributions to Auburn per donors' intent (e.g. pledge commitment, credit card, lockbox, stock, payroll deduction, cash wire, remote deposit, in-kind donation, matching gifts, planned gifts, and event-related revenue).
- Supervises reconciliation processes and approvals to ensure proper database recording protocols and/or receipting of all charitable contributions.
- Researches and analyzes relevant documentation and inputs data from the receipt of gifts from donors to Auburn University, Auburn University Foundation, Auburn University Real Estate Foundation, Tigers Unlimited Foundation, and Auburn Alumni Association. Accurately determines donor intent and gift purpose in recording gift checks and other giving instruments in donor records systems. Processes gifts and pledges in accordance with Auburn University, CASE policies, and IRS regulations.
- Ensures timely gift and/or records updates, allowing for receipts and record changes to be made according to leading industry practices.
- Enhances business processes, including automation where possible, for uploading and reconciling data from various sources into the fundraising system of record and other integrated systems.
- Works closely with staff across Advancement, including finance, IT, and fundraising colleagues to standardize and streamline the setup, facilitation and execution of gift agreements, allocation creation, and related entries or coding assignments across systems.
- Ensures the accuracy of data and gift information to provide for the most comprehensive record- keeping possible. Maximize the use of CRM database tools and business processes to find efficiencies and expedite data input and ensure gift batches are accurate and reconciled. Accuracy of data and gift information contributes to comprehensive reporting including industry and university reports (e.g. surveys, year-end compliance, 990s, and financial reporting).
- Applies organizational policies and procedures, particularly as they relate to data and gift accounting standards. Maintains the highest degree of confidentiality.

The responsibilities listed above show the typical duties for jobs in this classification. Actual tasks may differ depending on the department's needs. Other similar duties may be assigned with discretion of the supervisor. Not every duty will apply to every position, and the amount of time spent on each task can change based on department needs.
