Auburn University Job Description

Job Title: Dir, Curatorial Affairs Job Code: AB20
FLSA status: Exempt

Job Summary

Reporting to the Executive Director of the Jule Collins Smith Museum of Fine Arts, the Director of Curatorial Affairs leads the curatorial unit of the university's art museum, ensuring exceptional and innovative stewardship of its 3,000+ collection, exhibitions, and other collection-focused initiatives in collaboration with colleagues in order to expand art's impact and enrich the relationship of the museum with its communities, region, and the state. Responsible for assisting in executing the Museum's vision of a highly creative, outward-facing, visitor-centered institution that welcomes everyone to explore, experience, and engage with the visual arts in service to the university, the region, and the nation. The Director of Curatorial Affairs collaborates on the execution of administrative and budgetary matters for the curatorial unit, the establishment of curatorial policies and procedures, and long-range planning for exhibitions and engagement. Responsible for the safe-keeping and accessibility of the collection, as well as for new acquisitions and exhibitions that increase social interactivity and creative participation.

Essential Functions

1. Provides vision and dynamic exhibition programming leadership, including investigating potential opportunities around galleries, visual storage, centers focused on conservation, curatorial studies, and prints, drawings, and photographs, and new art study rooms all to enhance teaching resources for Auburn University, the southeast, and to position the institution as a premier teaching museum.

2. Collaborates with other senior leadership team members to administer the museum’s art collecting activities to establish priorities and plans for collection care, research, documentation, and access; and establishes programmatic impact goals to ensure mission and strategic alignment, creative engagement, learning across all demographics, and advancement of the museum's visibility and reputation. Collaborates on content for distribution via website and social media, and informs the execution of marketing, branding, and promotional activities that broaden the museum's reach and increase stakeholder engagement. Interfaces with the Advisory Board, as requested.

3. Establishes the guiding principles of curatorial offerings of the museum, aligned with its mission and vision to actively engage faculty and students and other new, diverse, and broad audiences across the region and state. In collaboration with colleagues, conceptualizes, plans, develops, and implements a 3 - 5 year creative exhibition calendar including other collection-focused initiatives and activities. Emphasizes cross-disciplinary, co-creation, multi-sensory, and to the extent possible hands-on learning opportunities in exhibition designs, to cultivate notions of inclusion, life skills, emotional intelligence, and well-being to expand art's impact on the public sphere. Incorporates new models of cultural participation, artistic practice and potential impact that also utilizes technology, tools, and an experimental social environment. Oversees, coordinates and manages technical design, AV and IT integration, graphic production, fabrication, installation, maintenance, de-installation, shipping, and storage.

4. Provides direction for the growth of collections, through acquisitions and gifts, as well as long-term planning and priorities for the management and conservation of works in the collection. Oversees research in the collection and collaborates with museum colleagues to develop appropriate methods for disseminating it to the widest possible audiences. Collaborates to identify and shepherd deaccessions and conservation initiatives; facilitates decisions on exhibition loan requests and long-term loan opportunities. and staff, assists in the development of a Collections Plan and fully participates in any existing collection committee work. Conducts original research and assists faculty, students, scholars, docents, and members of the community in their research of museum collections and exhibitions.

5. Partners with the Education, Engagement and Learning unit to develop appropriate interpretative programs, essays, and gallery and social media texts in support of the museum’s teaching mission. Collaborates with staff in the creation and management of interpretive strategies and public programs for a variety of audiences. Represents the museum at professional, academic, and social forums and arts initiatives with local, regional, national, international colleagues, and the broader cultural community through exhibition and research programs and events. Lectures on and leads tours of exhibitions and collections. Fosters faculty and student use of the collection across in curricula, extracurricular research, publishing, and inventive interpretive techniques. Helps train docents and student ambassadors in specific content areas and museum best practices, as needed. Builds and maintains a network of professional relationships with community members, lenders, donors, professional colleagues, artists, dealers, curators, collectors, and other specialists locally, nationally, and globally.

6. Manages the museum’s Curatorial unit and staff, inspiring and nourishing capacity and a culture of innovation, creative learning, risk-taking, transparency, experimentation, open communication and accountability. Fosters meaningful and transformative experiences for audiences at an institution that celebrates art, film and cultural discourse, in part through recruiting, training, mentoring, and supervising a team-oriented and strategically-focused staff. Assesses unit functions, priorities, and processes to ensure efficiencies, excellence, and alignment with museum best practices and American Alliance of Museums (AAM) accreditation standards.
Keeps unit staff informed with routine meetings and open communications. Demonstrates and requires adherence to the highest ethical standards.

7. Develops and oversees the unit’s annual budget and schedules, particularly tracking expenditures to ensure adherence to set goals, in close collaboration with the Executive Director and museum colleagues as needed.

Supervisory Responsibility
