JOB SUMMARY

The Director of Curatorial and Educational Affairs leads the stewardship and programmatic work of the university's art museum to foster meaningful and transformative experiences at a premier teaching institution that celebrates the visual arts and cultural discourse. Reporting to the Executive Director, the role bridges the art collection and exhibitions with research, outreach and instruction to present exceptional and innovative student-centered experiences and collaborative faculty engagement, alongside synergistic partnerships with the university community and beyond. A key member of the museum's senior leadership, the Director executes administrative and budgetary matters; establishes policies and procedures; and collaborates around long-range planning to ensure and expand the impact of the visual arts toward the enrichment of the university and its national and international visibility.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Manages the curatorial and educational functions of the museum. Establishes guiding principles that align with its mission, ensuring excellent collection stewardship and dynamic exhibitions and engagements that are cross-disciplinary, multi-sensory, relevant, authentic, accessible, diverse, and inclusive. Impactful object-based programmatic work particularly will strengthen the academic role of the museum within the university and foster collaboration that increases social interactivity and creative participation on-campus, online, and offsite. Assesses unit functions, priorities, and processes to ensure efficiencies, excellence, and alignment with museum best practices and American Alliance of Museums (AAM) accreditation standards.
- In close collaboration with senior leadership, utilizes best practices and art-based pedagogies to conceptualize, plan, develop, and implement an inventive 3 to 5-year calendar for exhibitions, collections and engagements that energize instructional dynamics and that foster faculty/student and surrounding communities' engagement across all curricula, extracurricular research and publishing, all to open new perspectives. Emphasizes a visitor-centered experience that expands visual arts impact on the public sphere, establishes programmatic impact goals that ensures engagement and learning across all demographics as well as underserved segments, governmental/civic entities, and works to advance the museum's visibility and reputation.
- Regularly monitors programmatic effectiveness, utilizing best practices, art-based pedagogies and visitor studies to analyze qualitative and quantitative statistics and other engagement metrics for use in evaluation, reports, and grants and funding proposals. Continually assesses results for effectiveness, relevance, and resource prioritization. Ensures timely and collegial responses to questions and feedback.
- Incorporates multi-generational learning and participatory experiences that foster critical and creative thinking skills, experimentation and global competence, emphasize cross-disciplinary, co-creation, multi-sensory, and programmatic designs for learning opportunities that cultivate notions of inclusion, life skills, emotional intelligence, and well-being. Applies new models of cultural participation and artistic/scholarly practice that also utilize technology, social media, and other digital tools to frame an experimental and experiential environment.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Administers the museum’s art collecting activities, establishing priorities and plans for collection care, research, documentation, and access. Ensures core museum documents related to the collection, exhibitions and engagements are current. Implements actions from these documents, such as deaccession and conservation initiatives, loan requests, or acquisition decisions, in a timely manner.
- Builds and maintains a network of professional relationships with the university community, colleagues, artists, scholars, writers/poets, actors/film makers, researchers, lenders, donors, dealers, educators, curators, collectors, and other specialists locally, nationally, and globally to support programmatic goals. Represents the museum at professional, academic, social forums, and arts/educational initiatives with university, regional, national, and international colleagues, along with the broader cultural community.
- Conducts original research and assists faculty, students, scholars, interns, and others as needed in their own research. Lectures, teaches and/or leads tours and other engagements.
- Develops and manages the unit’s annual budget, particularly tracking expenditures to ensure adherence to goals, in collaboration with the Director and other senior staff as needed. Executes clear contracts in a collegial, timely and efficient manner. Identifies applicable grant opportunities, drafts proposals and other funding requests, and supports other relevant fundraising initiatives. Recruits, trains, mentors, and manages a collaborative and strategically focused staff, inspiring and nourishing capacity and a culture of flexibility, innovation, creative learning, risk-taking, transparency, experimentation, open communication and accountability.
