JOB FAMILY AND FUNCTION

Job Family:	Athletics
Job Function:	Athletics Student Support Services & Academic Support

JOB SUMMARY

Creates, implements, and oversees integrated plans comprised of targeted programs and services designed to provide individualized structured assistance for student-athletes with significant academic challenges (students with documented education-impacting disabilities, international students, academically unsuccessful students, etc.). The plans are proactive, sustained and implemented to enhance student success and develop independent and self-motivated learners. The Learning Specialist's activities will support the mission and goals of Student-Athlete Support Services (SASS).

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Supports the development and implementation of data-informed programs and services tailored to assist academically challenged student-athletes, aiming to boost retention and graduation rates. The role involves crafting personalized learning plans and integrating Academic Strategists and Tutors to support the plan's successful execution.
- Facilitates the creation and implementation of initiatives and training programs and serves as a resource to SASS staff including Academic Counselors, Academic Strategists, and Tutors to ensure service providers are equipped with the skills and techniques required to best serve academically at-risk student-athletes.
- Serves as the liaison between SASS and the AU Office of Accessibility and the external screening and diagnostic service (clinical psychologists) providing additional assessment of at-risk student athletes. The Learning Specialist is an advocate for students when needed in regards to the process beginning with intake and initial assessments through diagnosis and the implementation and utilization of accommodations.
- Assists in the development and implementation of a comprehensive summer bridge program that begins to acclimate students to the rigor of college while also strategically providing needed remediation in the areas of math, reading, and writing.
- Creates and teaches workshops to targeted student-athletes focused on decision-making, time management, organization, self-advocacy, reading, math, study skills, and goal-setting.
- Works in conjunction with the Director, learning services to coordinate initial screening, assessment, and diagnostics testing of student athletes and makes referrals for additional testing by external clinical psychologists when the Learning Specialist deems this necessary. Additionally, consults and collaborates with external clinical psychologists, the team physician, the Athletics Department sports psychologists, and other professionals with regard to interpretation and utilization of data as it pertains to students diagnosed with education-impacting disabilities or experiencing academic challenges.
- Works one-on-one with at-risk student-athletes employing specific individualized learning strategies to enhance academic skill development.
- Maintains confidential records and historical data.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Ensures goals and objectives are met with strict adherence to NCAA, SEC, and Auburn University policies and procedures.
